Francis Jammos. lie feels the need of constantly persuading you (or trying to persuade you) that he is much poorer, simpler., more modest, etc., than he is.

Read aloud with Em. Reshetnikov's wonderful Those of Podlipovka. We had just finished Tolstoy's The Cossacks. We wanted to read Tess of the D'Urberoilles, but dropped it for Michelefs Revolution.

Pierre Laurens's summary of *L*Iimnoraliste:*
"I am ill; woe to me. I am cured; woe to her I"
